Dear Friends

It has been a remarkable year, and we are extraordinarily proud of our accomplishments.

Proud to add two new FDA-approved therapies to the options for patients.

Proud of our work with industry partners, for their help and support, to make all this happen.

And we are unbelievably grateful for your continued support.

In this extraordinary year we:

- Exceeded $70 million in total support for innovative myeloma research;
- Funded more than 30 breakthrough compounds at 130 institutions worldwide;
- Received FDA approval for two new therapies, including Revlimid which promises to delay the progression of the disease for many patients; and
- Continued to fuel the strategic collaborations needed to accelerate research and drug development.

We know we must continue making progress and breaking new ground.

This is an unprecedented time in medical and biotechnological discovery. With the mapping of the human genome and advanced biotechnology research, we are truly on the brink of quantum leaps in the race for a cure.

In the year to come, you can be certain that we will do all we can to advance our results and break down the barriers slowing research and drug development.

We will continue to fund work that will help us identify additional new therapies, to test and validate those therapies, and to advance the spectacular promise of genomic research.

Together with your generous support, our efforts will bring us to the ultimate goal — a cure for multiple myeloma.

Thank you for your commitment to the MMRF and for being part of this remarkable year.

Sincerely,
Kathy Giusti

Kathy Giusti
CEO and Co-Founder

Kathy and Karen together founded the MMRF with the mission to urgently and aggressively fund cutting-edge myeloma research.

Report from the Chief Operating Officer

Since our inception, the Multiple Myeloma Research Foundation has been guided by one simple philosophy — to make as much progress in the shortest time possible.

True to this mission, in 2006 we reached many important milestones and we have many significant successes to report, including:

- Raising more than $15 million for cutting edge research;
- Fueling two new FDA-approved treatments, bringing to three the number of approved therapies in the last four years;
- Awarding more than $10.5 million in research grants and funding to academic centers, biotech companies and the MMRC, in three critical research areas: Clinical Trials, Validation and Genomics;
- Earning a 4-star rating by Charity Navigator for the fourth consecutive year, and the ICA “Best in America” Seal of Excellence.
- Continuing to lead the myeloma community in educating patients, families, researchers, clinicians and the public, through our innovative Patient Navigator clinical trial database, publications, web sites and symposia, with up-to-the-minute news and developments.

With our focused, business-like approach, the MMRF continued in 2006 to leverage innovative investments, providing highly accountable strategies to help in the urgent discovery of a cure.

As an organization founded by a patient and with a patient-centered culture, the MMRF understands the importance of developing more effective treatments and speeding them to patients.

Supported by an extraordinarily talented team that shares the will to succeed and a deep sense of urgency, the MMRF remains a driving force in the fight against myeloma.

We thank you for your support this year and we hope you will continue your commitment to helping the MMRF succeed.

COO and Executive Director

Exceptional Financial Management

The MMRF is proud to direct an outstanding 93 percent of funds raised to research and related programming, making the MMRF's research grants program one of the nation's most effective and efficient.

2006 Allocation of MMRF Funds

Our commitment to fiscal responsibility is truly unmatched, as evidenced by the following accreditations:

- A Four-Star rating by Charity Navigator
- An A+ rating by the American Institute of Philanthropy
- Compliance with all of the Better Business Bureau's (BBB) Wise Giving Alliance Standards for Charity Accountability
- A "Best in America" Seal of Excellence from the Independent Charities of America
- Approval from the National Cancer Institute (NCI) for its research grants program

93% Research Awards and Related Programming

The MMRF is the world's only organization to have achieved these accreditations.

Delivering Treatments to Patients

As a patient-focused organization, the MMRF is committed to bringing new treatments to patients as quickly as possible.

In the last three years alone, we have supported the discovery, development, and availability of three lifesaving treatments — Revlimid®, Velcade®, and Thalomid®— in less time than it usually takes to bring a single drug to market. In 2006, we were especially proud to have worked closely with Celgene in bringing Revlimid® to patients. Approved in June 2006, Revlimid® is an important new treatment option that is extending and improving the lives of thousands of myeloma patients.

Today, the MMRF continues work hand in hand with academia and industry to rapidly advance promising compounds along the drug development pathway and into the hands of patients.

“From funding early-stage research to helping to rapidly accrue patients into clinical trials, the MMRF has played an integral role in accelerating drug development,” said Sol Barer, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer

Three FDA-approved treatments. Thirty more in clinical trials.

First treatment approved in more than a decade.

"Thanks to the MMRF's investment in only the most promising myeloma research, I, along with thousands of other myeloma patients, have benefited from three new therapies that did not exist even just a few years ago." — Dean Assink

"The FDA approval of REVLIMID represents an important step forward for the treatment of multiple myeloma," said Kathy Giusti, MMRF Founder and CEO. "We are proud to have been a partner with Celgene in the development of REVLIMID, and we thank them for their efforts on behalf of patients who need new therapies to overcome this disease. This milestone signifies the way new treatment options can augment current therapies, extend lives, and ultimately bring us closer to a cure. Kathy Giusti, CEO and Co-Founder

Funding Innovative Research

The MMRF is proud to advance one of the scientific community's most innovative research and drug development portfolios. Guided by an innovative Scientific Agenda, the MMRF research portfolio comprises cutting-edge research and drug development projects in three areas: Clinical Trials, Validation, and Genomics. Taken together, projects in these short-, mid-, and long-term focus areas promise to deliver better treatments on a shortened timeline.

In 2006, the MMRF provided $10.5 million to support efforts in these three research areas.

Clinical Trials

- LEAD (Leveraging Existing Myeloma Targets to Accelerate Drug Discovery and Development) Awards, which provide seed funding to biotech companies working in partnership with leading myeloma research institutions, to fast track promising compounds from the bench to the bedside. In 2006, the MMRF awarded its first two LEAD grants to Semafore and Prochon.

“This generous grant from the MMRF will enable us to rapidly initiate a clinical trial of SF1126 in multiple myeloma,” said Joseph Garlich, PhD, Co-Founder and Chief Scientific Officer. “The MMRF has an outstanding track record of funding innovative research that has significantly increased the treatment options available to myeloma patients.”

Validation

- Drug Library Screening Awards to test a compound library against known molecular targets for multiple myeloma, and to determine if existing therapeutic classes of compounds show activity in the disease. In 2006, the MMRF awarded three Drug Library Screening Awards.
- Validation of Novel Combination Awards to support the testing of several targeted therapeutic agents—either novel or currently available compounds—in innovative, rationally designed combinations and sequences. In 2006, the MMRF awarded seven Validation of Novel Combination Awards.
- Compound Validation Awards to identify and prioritize through robust pre-clinical validation those compounds that show the most potential in treating the myeloma. In 2006, the MMRF awarded five Compound Validation Awards.
- Cell Line Development Awards to support the creation of new cell lines or improve existing cell lines to advance critical pre-clinical validation studies. In 2006, the MMRF awarded two Cell Line Development Awards.

Genomics

- The Multiple Myeloma Genomics Initiative, a cutting-edge genome-mapping program spearheaded by the MMRF and MMRC and in collaboration with the Translational Genomics Research Institute (TGen) and the Eli and Edythe L. Broad Institute of MIT and Harvard. In 2006, the MMRF directed $1.7 million to this exciting Initiative.
- Therapeutic Targets Awards to support researchers in the identification, validation, and prioritization of new druggable targets for multiple myeloma. In 2006, the MMRF awarded ten Therapeutic Targets Awards.
- MMRF Fellows Awards provide a one-year $75,000 grant to researchers just entering the field of multiple myeloma and working under the supervision of a research sponsor. In 2006, the MMRF awarded eight Fellows Awards to some of the most talented young researchers around the world.

“The Validation of Novel Combinations Research Grant Awards will help us determine what drugs work best together, in what order, and at what stage of the person’s disease. These findings will prove to be critical in development therapies that effectively treat myeloma,” said Jesus San Miguel, MD, PhD, University of Salamanca, Spain.

Supporting the MMRC

The MMRF is proud to support novel research and drug development conducted by its sister organization, the Multiple Myeloma Research Consortium (MMRC). Founded in 2004 as an extension of the MMRF's mission, the MMRC is the only research model of its kind that brings together leading academic institutions to work with industry to accelerate the development of new myeloma therapies. Today, the MMRC is comprised of 13 Member Institutions that are now conducting cutting-edge research across three cutting-edge research cores: clinical trials, validation, and genomics.

As a results-driven research model, MMRC efforts are particularly focused on advancing promising novel and combination therapies out of the research lab and into early stage clinical trials as quickly as possible. In 2006, the MMRF directed $3.7 million to support MMRC research and drug development efforts, including:

Clinical Trials

- Phase I Clinical Trial of NPI-0052 in collaboration with Nereus Pharmaceuticals
- Phase I Clinical Trial of Perifosine, Revlimid®, and Dexamethasone in collaboration with Nereus Pharmaceuticals
- Phase I Clinical Trial of TKI258 in collaboration with Novartis Pharmaceuticals

Pre-Clinical Studies

- Monoclonal Antibody Screening Study in collaboration with Genentech
- Novel Compound Validation Study in collaboration with Keryx Biopharmaceuticals
- Tissue accrual into the MMRC Tissue Bank

Educating Patients and Clinicians

As the myeloma community's leading source of myeloma-specific information, the MMRF provides free-of-charge educational programming tailored specifically to patients, families, researchers, and other healthcare professionals. These critical programs enable the myeloma community to stay up-to-date on the latest information on myeloma research, including new clinical trials.

MMRF Website

The MMRF's website, www.multiplemyeloma.org, features comprehensive information about myeloma, including information about disease progression and management, treatment options, and current research initiatives. In 2006, the MMRF's website reached hundreds of thousands of people nationwide, with nearly 600,000 unique visitors.

Clinical Trials

The MMRF is the world's only organization that offers a searchable, web-based database of clinical trials for myeloma at www.MyelomaTrials.org. With more than 130 clinical trials at patients' fingertips, this cutting-edge resource helps patients gain access to the most promising novel and combination treatments in Phase I, II, and III clinical trials—many of which are not listed elsewhere. In 2006, more than 50,000 people visited MyelomaTrials.org.

Educational Symposia

The MMRF offers educational symposia several times a year at research institutions nationwide. These innovative symposia consist of one continuing medical education (CME) session for healthcare professionals, followed by a patient and family session. In 2006, the MMRF offered this unique educational programming at five academic institutions.

MMRF Newsletters

The MMRF offers MMRF SmartBrief™, a weekly e-mail newsletter highlighting the latest scientific research and clinical trials, and Myeloma Focus, a quarterly print newsletter featuring updates on the latest research, clinical trial information, and news about the Foundation. In 2006, more than 40,000 received MMRF SmartBrief weekly, and nearly 100,000 received Myeloma Focus quarterly.

Communicating Our Innovative Model

The MMRF conducts extensive public relations efforts to raise awareness of myeloma and the importance of increased research funding in making progress against the disease. In 2006, the MMRF secured several high-profile media outlets, including BioWorld, Glamour Magazine, NBC Nightly News, San Francisco Business Times, Scientific American, and The Wall Street Journal.

Raising Funds for Research

In 2006, the MMRF hosted several successful events, raising millions of dollars for myeloma research.

Chicago Awards Dinner

The MMRF held its fifth annual Chicago Awards Dinner on April 4, 2006, in Chicago, Ill. This inspiration event, which raised more than $830,000 to fund myeloma research, was emceed by actor Bonnie Hunt and chaired by Joseph Hogan of GE Healthcare, Lester Knight of RoundTable Healthcare Partners, and Philip Purcell, formerly of Morgan Stanley. Football legend Gayle Sayers was the event's keynote speaker.
